

The figure displays a 10x10 grid where each cell's color represents a value. The colors range from dark purple (low values) to bright yellow (high values). A prominent diagonal line of high values (yellow and light green) runs from the bottom-left to the top-right, indicating a strong positive correlation. The off-diagonal cells are predominantly dark purple, suggesting low correlation between non-paired variables.

